To whom it may concern,

I am writing in response to the proposed plans to the south of Warrington.

As a resident of [REDACTED] Grappenhall, I am deeply concerned about the significant changes that have been proposed. Since becoming homeowners in [REDACTED] it has taken my husband and I [REDACTED] years to finally afford to live in this part of Warrington to now be told that we potentially will have some kind of transport link [REDACTED]. We are just about to remortgage and use the equity in our house to extend to our growing family, but with the proposed plans, our house value is likely to plummet and we will not have any equity, never mind be able to afford to move elsewhere in the area. We are appalled at the thought of this being done to us after years of struggling and striving get to our 'forever home'. How dare this be taken away from us.

I understand the government agenda for growth and need for housing for a growing population, however, how can houses in the proposed areas of Grappenhall be even affordable for those who need it? It appears, once again, to be all about money. And we are the ones who will suffer.

[REDACTED] I am absolutely devastated to have such changes forced upon us, especially where greenbelt land will also be used and where there are other areas of the country that could be used just as easily.

The air pollution in Warrington is already at worrying levels - how can plans be put in place to make this even worse? It is ludicrous. Once again, [REDACTED] spoil by developers.

I sincerely hope all of the residents concerns are being taken very seriously and we are listened to for a fair outcome.
