For the attention of [REDACTED]

This is a postscript to a previous email just sent to yourself.

I did attempt to see you briefly this afternoon when we arrived and realised there was a major problem with your consultation event today. [REDACTED] had a word with me and let me in, suggesting I find you, but I had no idea who you are and all those wearing lanyards were inundated.

[REDACTED] was doing his best to deal with the queue and clearly understood there was a problem, asked me to email you direct and asap to express our concerns and ask for an extension. He also promised to relay this to you verbally, himself.
