Subject: Development Plan South Warrington

The plan to transform South Warrington into the largest car park in the North West is horrific. Apart from destroying the countryside, why 93% South Warrington--what are the politics in this-- there is no suitable road infrastructure to support the proposal. To build one would make the whole plan even worse. The earlier plans to put in place roads to support an already creaking system have now been used as a basis to make the position 10 times worse. Overall the best solution would be not to build the roads at all and remove the development plan. Perhaps South Warrington should declare UDI or perhaps a Wrexite and stand alone in determining its own future. Why on earth do we need/want to become a City. We don't need to compete with Manchester or Liverpool.
