I am horrified by the thought of several hundred more vehicles a day crawling through Stockton Heath and Stretton. During my [REDACTED] years residence in Appleton I have observed many changes in traffic management throughout Warrington, all of them insufficiently radical to even effect short term improvement in traffic flows. I suspect short term financial considerations have been to blame for the lack of say underpasses or overpasses to facilitate uninterrupted flow on eg. A49 north through town. Every proposed new road to relieve or improve traffic flow seems to have had one central question, namely, how many houses and businesses can be built all around so defeating the stated objective. I have no confidence in the current council's will or ability to do better than it has in the past or in its ambition to make Warrington better rather than bigger

Yours faithfully
